(Special to The Times-Dispatch.) FREDERICKSBURG, VA., September 26.—The annual fair of the Rappahannock Valley Association will open here to-morrow with bright prospects for a successful exhibition. This is one of the few fairs of the State which has never had a fallure, though for eighteen years it has been held annually, and at no fair In the State do the ladies take such an active interest, and the display of domestic products and ladies' handlwork is the largest to be found. It is believed that the fair this year will be fully up to its former successes, if not better. Among the prominent visitors from a distance will be Senator Thomas S. Martin, wh will be senator Thomas S. Martin, who will arrive Tuesday and remain until Wednesday night, to mingle with the people of the surrounding counties, who attend the fair in great numbers. Gov-ernor Montague, Lleutenant-Governor Wilernor alontage, Dectembre and delega-lard and the entire congressional delega-tion have also been invited, and a num-ber of other prominent men are expected to attend.

During the recent heavy wind storm the steamer Lancaster, of the Weems line, which piles the Rappahannock, was tied up at Wilmont wharf, in Westmoreland county, and the strain from the terrific wind was so great on the wharf that it gave way in many places and was badly broken up.

John F. Rixey, Jr., son of Congressman Rixey, of Culpeper county, has again had a serious accident while riding a spirited horse. He was recently thrown and his arm was broken and the splints had just been removed when the second accident occurred. In the latter case the horse, which was going at a rapid gait, fell, and the young man sustained a compound fracture of the collar bone, besides a severe scalp wound and injuries to his side.

RUMORED SALE.

The fact that Superintendent T. A.
Joynes, of the B. C. and A. steamboat line of Baltimore, went down the Rappahannock River from here a few days ago and asked many questions concerning the wharf property, has revived the report that the B. C. and A. Company will in a short time purchase the Weems line of steamers. The B. C. and A. Company is controlled by the Pennsylvania Raliroad.

the home of their uncle, Mr. B. H. Trice, had a thrilling experience a few days ago. They had to cross the Maiaponi River at Toom's Bridge, to King William side. As they drove off of the bridge, they discovered that the river was up and the low-grounds were flooded. They were afraid to turn around. They drove on and pretty soon their team was swimming. They stood up in the seat, and held to the reins, and came out safe, but very wet when they got out of the bugsy. They squeezed all the water out they could while the water was running out of the bugsy box, and jumped in of the buggy box, and jumped in drove a distance of five miles to their uncle's. They both being young and hav-ing a good team, made the distance in a few minutes. They seemed to enjoy their narrow escape.

to a Richmond Friend.

A letter has been received in this city from First Lieutenant Harry N. Cootes, formerly of Staunton, and for some time a resident of this city, but for several years in the Philippine service.

This is his second term there, his first being in a volunteer regiment. Some years ago he was appointed a lieutenant in the regular army, and after some months at San Antonio, Texas, he was ordered to the Philippines more than year ago. He states that he will spend another year in the archipelago, and will then return to the States via Inglia and the Suez Canal, spending a month in Europe en route. In the course of his letter Lieutenant Cootes says: "Since my last tour here the islands have improved wonderfully, and now we are really comfortable and the health of the men is good, with a few days of fever occasionally. But one gets used to this in the long run, and it matters very little."

The letter is written from Camp McGrath, Batangas, P. I., and is dated August 5th.

BIG MEETING

Twenty-seventh Annual Convention of American Bar Association Begins in St. Louis.

ALASKA BOUNDARY

Interesting Discussion of Paper by Mr. Dickenson-Virginia Member of Council.

BT. LOUIS, September 25.—The largest and most representative gathering in the history of the American Bar Association marked the opening session of the inwenty-seventh annual convention, which began to-day in Festival Hall, on the World's Fair Grounds.

During the convention, which continues until Wednesday noon, when the Universal Congress of Lawyers and Jurists will assemble under the auspices of the association, it is expected that several important discussions will arise, chief of which will be that of "The Alaska Boundary Case."

Of the several committee reports which will attract particular attention, the report of the Commercial Committee is most frequently menioned. This is due to the fact that at the 1903 convention this report was the center of controversy, and it is understood that, relative to certain points at issue, a satisfactory settlement was not reached.

The meeting was called to order by James Hageman, of St. Louis, president of the association, who made an address. The discussion of a paper presented by J. M. Dickenson, of Chiege, on the "Alaskan Boundary Case," concluded the day's session.

After (b) adoption of the reports of offi-

"For Her Children's Sake," which was presented at the Academy yesterday, is a melodrama of a type which was popular fifteen years ago. It is not one of the bridge jumping or air ship melodrama, which are produced by the up-to-date writers of "thrilling" plays. The play has rather an English atmosphere, and but for one line the audience might well suppose that the scenes are laid in a provincial town of Great Britain. This line seems to be introduced for the purpose of setting the audience right as to the locality. The play tells an old story in an old manner, but it proves entertaining.

the an old manner, but it please tailing.

Tailing.

The wo children in the play occupy much of the attention of the audience. Recallstic scenes always hold an audience mere than those merely dramatic. It is the familiar scenes of everyday life, as reproduced upon the stage, that make the play a true picture. However, there is such a thing as carrying realism too far, and this is done in the second act, or rather the act following the prologue.

"How He Won Her."

for Mr. Clifford, and it is a pretty good plece of work at that. There is much of the melodramatic in the play, in which a messenger boy, several pretty, agile and shapely girls, a stenographer, a villain, an adventuress, two colored men and the rich old man have an abundance to do. The play is lively, bright and singery. The three Sisters Joy, the Marvin Sisters, Jack Clark and Sandy White and George Washington White do some clever work in the vaudeville line. The musical numbers of the two last named are really fine.

Then Single Billy Clifford comes along and sings and dances and ingratiates himself with the audience to induce five encores, Clifford is great and interesting. He talks and sings in a confidential way. The scenery carried by the company is most entertaining. There is a matine this afternoon, with the usual performance at night.

"Miss Bob White."

"Miss Bob White."

The unmistakable marks of inspiration are apparent in Williard Spenser's musical score of "Miss Bob White," to be seen at the Academy to-night, It is entirely devoid of that studied strain that pervides the conventional composer's works, as exemplified in the modern, so-called "up-to-date" musical comedies. Simple in theme, yet sweet and melodious, it is within the ordinary understanding, and that is why it has become so universally popular. Mr. Spenser's libretto holds the same virtue as his score, and the blending of the two constitutes a performance so clean, so wholesome and so pure in avery detail, that it immediately recommends itself to every one who appreciates the best in theatricals, "Miss Bob White" will appeal to local theatre-goers to the very last man or woman.
